

Racine advises Partech on the closing of Partech Entrepreneur IV, its fourth Seed fund, at €120M.

Racine advises Partech, the global technology investment firm, on the closing of Partech Entrepreneur IV, its fourth Seed fund, at its €120M hard cap. The oversubscribed fund has seen support from leading financial institutions, multinational corporations, family offices and 100 entrepreneurs – of which 35 were themselves funded by Partech in the past.

Partech Entrepreneur IV will back around 50 founding teams in Europe and across the globe, at preseed and seed stage. Thanks to a flexible and collaborative model, it can invest as a lead investor or co-investor, with initial checks from €300K to €3M, and typically reinvest until Series B.

The Seed strategy at Partech is managed by a dedicated team of former entrepreneurs from Europe and the US. The team is not limiting itself to specific industries, markets or models: "We are convinced that spotting the future leaders of new emerging categories often requires a broad scope, and a genuine open-mindedness towards what the most talented Founders come up with" explains Romain Lavault, General Partner at Partech.

With its past Seed funds, Partech backed a range of iconic companies such as Alan, the health insurance & superapp, Sorare, the NFT fantasy sport gaming platform, Jellysmack, the technology platform for creators, Xendit, the digital payment infrastructure for South-East Asia, or Merama, the leading e-commerce aggregator in Latin America.

For this closing, Partech was advised by Racine, with a team led by partner Rima Maitrehenry and associate Stein Mpassi Loufouma.
